Re: 2025 Pro Bono Report for Lycoming County
Date: January 12, 2026

I want to sincerely thank the members of the Lycoming Law Association for volunteering to accept cases, pro bono, from North Penn Legal Services.

33 attorneys in Lycoming County accepted pro bono cases from our office in 2025.

This is a breakdown of the number and types of cases referred to pro bono attorneys by North Penn in 2025 in Lycoming County:

Protection from Abuse	91
Debt collection defense	5
Landlord/Tenant	12
Guardianship & POA	3
Conflict referrals	3
Foreclosure defense	1
Unemployment Compensation	1
Name Change	1
Sexual Violence/Intimidation prot. order	2
Expungements/Sealing	1
Total	120

Protection from Abuse cases continue to be the area of greatest need for volunteer assistance. The number of PFA cases in Lycoming County referred to our agency exceeds our available resources, which include pro bono attorneys, staff attorneys, and private attorneys with whom we contract on an hourly basis. We continue to handle approximately 300 cases each year, but the number of cases being filed has increased dramatically.

I am attaching our most recent letter to the new admittees to the bar of Lycoming County, which outlines our pro bono opportunities. Thank you to everyone who accepted pro bono cases from North Penn. I am grateful that, in spite of the challenges of handling cases for low-income people, you have continued to volunteer your time and effort to help them.

Dear Attorney _____,

We would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you on your association with _____ and the bar of Lycoming County. As an active attorney in Lycoming County, you have become affiliated with a bar association that is a leader within the state of Pennsylvania in providing pro bono legal services to the indigent.

In 1985, the Lycoming Law Association and the Lycoming County Court of Common Pleas, upon recommendation of then President Judge Thomas C. Raup, asked that all attorneys practicing in Lycoming County, accept three pro bono referrals each year from the local legal aid office, which is now North Penn Legal Services. The Law Association and Judge Nancy Butts, the current President Judge, have continued the Court's commitment to pro bono representation in this county. The Court and the Law Association believe this to be an integral part of an attorney's professional responsibility.

North Penn Legal Services has a number of options available for performing pro bono service.

1. Protection from Abuse Panel

This panel is comprised of approximately 50 attorneys who have agreed to fulfill their pro bono obligation by accepting indigent clients who are seeking Protection from Abuse orders. This is the area of greatest need for pro bono service, and many attorneys find this to be a rewarding and satisfying way to meet their obligation. There are several law firms in which all the members participate. These hearings are scheduled within 10 business days of the filing of a petition. To avoid scheduling conflicts, at your option, you can provide North Penn with three or more times throughout the year that you will reserve for PFA hearings. (These hearings are consistently scheduled every Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning.) North Penn will provide training and support to you, through CLEs, written materials, and individual training and support.

2. Mortgage Foreclosure Diversion Program

In July of 2012, the Lycoming County Court of Common Pleas instituted a Mortgage Foreclosure Diversion Program for owner-occupied properties in foreclosure. Homeowners who are sued can request that the foreclosure be stayed, while they attempt to negotiate with the lender and participate in a settlement conference with the Court. Pro bono attorneys volunteer to represent homeowners in the settlement conferences and in negotiations with the lender. North Penn provides training and support to the pro bono attorney, through written materials and individual training.

3. Cases in your area of practice

Some attorneys prefer to represent clients with problems in the areas in which their private practice is focused. North Penn serves indigent clients in a wide variety of civil legal cases, and many are turned away due to the high volume of requests for services. We can serve a much larger segment of the community with your help one in these areas:

1. Expungement, limited access, or pardoning of criminal records – if your practice is primarily criminal defense, this is the area for you. An old criminal record is often a barrier to employment and housing for indigent people.
2. Power of Attorney and guardianship – many indigent clients need help formalizing these relationships, in order to improve or stabilize their finances and housing.
3. Government benefits – ineligibility, over/underpayment, or denial of coverage in disability, unemployment and medical assistance cases can have severe consequences for those living in poverty.
4. Bankruptcy – when it is necessary to protect the income, assets, housing or utility service of an indigent person.

4. Conflict Referrals

If you agree to be placed on our conflict attorney referral list, you may be contacted directly by clients who cannot be served by North Penn due to a conflict of interest. When someone is financially eligible for North Penn's services, but a conflict exists, we cannot gather the information necessary to make a direct referral. Those applicants are given the enclosed form, which is always copied on blue paper. They are given this form with a list of attorneys who have agreed to accept conflict referrals, so they can find their own representation. If an attorney accepts a conflict referral and sends the Acceptance of Pro Bono Referral form to us, the attorney is given credit for a pro bono referral. If there is ever a question about the legitimacy of a referral, please do not hesitate to call North Penn's Pro Bono Coordinator, Becky Rennicks, at 570-323-8741, ext. 8703.

Earning CLE credits by providing pro bono service

Beginning in 2019, Pennsylvania attorneys can receive one (1) CLE credit hour for every five (5) hours of pro bono service completed through North Penn Legal Services. A maximum of three (3) credit hours may be earned per compliance period. For more information, see 204 Pa. Code section 5.

Another way to help - Donating your arbitration fees to the LLAf

Attorneys who serve on arbitration panels in Lycoming County can also donate some or all of their fees to the Lycoming Law Association Foundation, and a percentage of those donations is awarded to the Williamsport Office of North Penn Legal Services, to support its work in Lycoming County. A form for donating these fees is also enclosed.

We realize that many attorneys represent clients without compensation and also do pro bono work for organizations. However, the civil legal needs of many indigent people are unmet, and North Penn works diligently to prioritize cases in which your time and effort are most critical.

An appeal for Pro Bono Service was made by Chief Justice Todd earlier this year, which is enclosed, and the Pennsylvania Bar Association maintains a website dedicated to pro bono service - PAPProbono.net - an "online legal community that provides information and resources for pro bono attorneys, legal aid attorneys, public defenders, and other legal advocates interested in increasing access to justice. This site contains resources to assist in your representation of low income or disadvantaged clients."

Thank you so much for your attention and interest in pro bono work, and welcome to the Lycoming County bar! Please let us know how you wish to participate. We look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,
